The town in the Havelland

The whole country summarized in a city

A very warm welcome to our “town in the river”!
Brandenburg an der Havel, 60 km west of Berlin, received this sobriquet because the municipal area is made up of about one fifth of water.

The Havel connects the three historical island towns with its numerous side arms. The cathedral island is the oldest settlement and looks back over more than 1000 years of urban history and the first bishopric east of the Elbe was established here as early as 948. Brandenburg an der Havel is also the cradle of the eponymous Mark, founded by the Ascanian Margrave Albrecht the Bear, and consequently the heartland of later Prussia. Altstadt and Neustadt were each founded in the twelfth century, united in 1715, and proudly display their historical treasures to the discerning visitor.

Take a look at the map and you will quickly understand why Brandenburg an der Havel is considered the gateway to Europe's largest inter-connected inland watersports area. In the west part of the town the Havel spreads out to become a 15 km² lake area, and in the north the Beetzsee chain of lakes presents one of the most beautiful natural regatta courses in the world.

In addition, seven nature conservation areas come together at this point. In this magnificent countryside, which is typical of the Mark, storks, cranes, eagles, herons, kingfishers and beavers are all indigenous. So just visit us here in the former Hanseatic town and you will be able to pursue whatever takes your fancy - water adventures or cycling, walking or hiking, nature or culture. Our town is reached very easily by car – the A2 motorway is only a few kilometres away, or by rail – the regional express runs every 30 minutes. So, see you soon here in Brandenburg an der Havel!

Excursions

A warm welcome from a lofty height! The Neustadt district of Brandenburg an der Havel, surrounded by water, presents itself to both visitors and residents.

What do these famous names have in common with Brandenburg an der Havel: Vicco von Bülow (alias Lorient), Otto von Bismarck, Fritze Bollmann, Albrecht der Bär and Brennabor? The initial letter B, of course! And more importantly: they all point to the Electorate and capital of the eponymous Mark. It doesn't matter whether you are looking for an excursion into the past, into the countryside or a sporting challenge, you have come to the right place.

Terms such as bishopric, baroque organ, basilica, brick churches, brotherhood or buildings of historic importance all evoke times gone-by and enable fascinating journeys into an urban history of over 1,000 years.

On the other hand, boat trips, Beetzsee, bathing and picnics baskets cater for peaceful hours and relaxation and provide the visitor with a varied and interesting stay. The widely varied range of possibilities in the capital is unlimited and inimitable – simply brilliant.

Havel Lakes

On the Water

There are seven lakes with an amazing 30 km² water surface which are part of Brandenburg an der Havel. And who would not want to play captain?

Go on, fulfil your childhood dreams – you don't need a sailing licence to rent a small and nifty raft-house to sail off over lakes and through canals and enjoy the splendid scenery of the Havel countryside. If you come in your own houseboat, you can connect with the major Elbe and Oder shipping routes via the Havel.

The historical inner city, which is made up of three medieval town centres, can be explored very nicely from the water in a sailboat or a paddle boat. 58 bridges span the river, which connects all three island towns with its side arms, ditches and canals, and which winds its way past more than 400 historical monuments. These include churches, remains of the medieval town wall and four well-preserved gate towers. The round tour is seven kilometres long, so don't miss the opportunity to moor and take a walk, for example at the cathedral.

Ship Ahoy!

Need to stock up on food and daily needs?
You can't miss the REWE-pier right behind the Luckenberg Bridge.

And it's "Full speed ahead" for the "Havelfee" and other passenger ships which provide various excursions with refreshments through the unique water landscape. Or take one of the frequent trips on the "Pegasus", „Navette" or "Sirius", to the mills, through the lakes or on a city tour. If you prefer a steamship, then the "Nordstern" is the ship for you and if you're lucky, you might be able to have a quick visit to the engine room with its historical steam engine equipment from 1902.

If you're looking for something more adventurous, you can travel back in history to the year 1000 AD and seek accommodation and daily life in the Slavic village, followed by a charter trip on the wooden ship "Triglav", built on the Slavic model, to complete the feeling of life in the Middle Ages.

"Ferryman, pick me up" is still the easiest way of crossing the water. "Anna" or "Frieda" will carry you off to one of the traditional restaurants, such as Bühnenhaus or Malge. Don't worry – the seemingly bold ladies are ferries in the service of the Nordstern Schifffahrtsgesellschaft.

The voyage can begin – Ship ahoy!

trail of the beaver

“Row, row, row your boat, gently down the stream ...”, as the old children's song goes. It doesn't make any difference if you're preferred method of paddling is in a canoe, a kayak or a rowing boat, an outing on the Brandenburg lakes is always a delight and full of surprises.

Dip your oar into the local waters and set out on the trail of the fascinating architect and landscape gardener, the beaver. The Visitor Centre in Krugpark offers a romantic sunset tour but they also have day trips, which stop at the Kanincheninsel (Rabbit Island) or Bühnenwerder in Breiðlingsee. But if you are looking for something even closer to nature, why not take the canoe trip offer with a night in a tent and be woken by bird song at dawn?

The individual water traveller, too, can find his or her own Eldorado among the numerous moorings in these protected and peaceful waters.

Houseboat Holidays

Cit

y Break on a Houseboat

Why not travel in your holiday home and drop anchor somewhere different every night? The Havel with its many lakes, tributaries and canals is the ideal stretch of water for a houseboat holiday.

“She lives on a houseboat down by the river”... The words of the 1960s song still ring true today. The area around Brandenburg on the Havel, with its wonderful river and lake landscape, is the perfect destination for boating enthusiasts. Those who enjoy waking up among ducks, coots and swans, will drop anchor in a secluded bay.

Others use the many moorings in the city, for example the Salzhofufer, the Jungfernsteig or the marina in Slawendorf. An extensive inner city waterway network makes it possible to discover this interesting city from a home on the water.

Even if you don't have your own houseboat, your dream can still come true, as there are plenty of opportunities to charter one, for example from the Bootsverleih Seehof, Houseboot Plauer See, BunBo, Rollyboot or Pension Havelfloß.

You don't need a boating licence for a raft houseboat. For yachts or houseboats over 15 hp you can obtain a charter permit by taking a short, half-day course at the boat hire company. The licence is valid for the Havel Lakes and the Lower Havel towards Rathenow.

“Who needs the South Sea? We love blue water.
Acapulco is on Beetzsee. Brandenburg is our world.”

A popular song with these sentiments became a sort of town anthem – with good reason. It reminded us of the delights of bathing in the Brandenburg lakes.

The well-cared for public lido of Massowburg at Beetzsee is very popular, watched over at a safe distance by the new Bollmann statue. The lido is open from 6 in the morning to 10 in the evening, and boasts lawns for sunbathing, playgrounds and two volleyball pitches. There are places to change in, which ensure a certain amount of privacy, and there is a mini-kiosk for snacks and drinks, as well as a toilet and a parking lot.

As in many other bathing spots around, such as at Grillendamm, at the Malge or at the Wendseeufer, the quality of the water complies with EU directives and is regularly monitored.

“Don't forget your swimsuit!” – even though we're going up the hill. At almost 70 metres above sea-level, the Marienberg is the highest point in the town of Brandenburg an der Havel.

Once a Germanic and Slavic sacred site, nowadays it is a popular family destination. Children are in their element here and can run wild and free, bathing, climbing, digging to their heart's content. But adults can also have great fun here: the numerous leisure activities range from the recreational pool to a sauna complex, to table tennis and volleyball. And don't forget the open air theatre and the gastronomy, which includes the highest beer garden in Brandenburg. As monks cleared the forested summit in order to plant grapevines in 1173, the hill even counts as the oldest wine-growing area in northern Germany.

The Marienbad municipal swimming pool has been in use since 1969. Now it is a more like a water park with its paddling pool, various swimming pools, wide water slide, and the 12-metre high and 80-metre long pipe-slide, not to forget the 50-metre long pool with a convertible sliding roof. Leisure pleasure is guaranteed by a wide variety of attractions such as the countercurrent channel, massage jets, the waterfall and a grotto in the 445 m² warm-water fun pool.

Children love the “Marienberg Treasure”, as the adventure playground in the outside area is called, where they can explore the world at their own pace and demonstrate their athletic talent. You'd like to go even higher? Then here's your chance: the observation tower. As early as 1908 the Bismarckwarte - a nearly 30-metre tall tower with a look-out platform - crowned the hill. 50 years later it was renamed Friedenswarte and the Bismarck bust was covered by a dove representing peace. In 1974 it was replaced by a modern, 32.5 meter-tall observation tower. There are five glazed and five open platforms offering fantastic views over the Havelland and its far-reaching chain of lakes. If the weather is good, the visitor can see as far as Potsdam, Rathenow and Genthin.

EXPERIENCE WITH BIKE

trip

out and about

in the countryside

Wheels gently whispering with the wind. The air is clear. Birds are singing in the woods. To be at one with nature isn't just a saying around here in Brandenburg an der Havel - you can feel it.

A good example is the 7-lake tour, a circular route around the south-west Havel lake area. 35 kilometres in length, the cycle path is paved and well-signposted, ideal for a daytrip starting and finishing at the Neustädischer Markt. In the town centre the cyclist is on the same route as other cycling tracks, including national routes, and on occasion even has to use the main road and cross railway tracks. First destination: Breitlingsee. Long sections of the track there follow the lakeside between Wilhelmsdorf and Kirchmöser. You'd like to get deeper into the Havelland countryside? Then the Nature Conservation Centre Krugpark with its new "Environment pyramid" is the place for you. Called after the "Neuer Krug", a popular restaurant of the time, this location has been a place to feel at one with nature since 1825.

Nowadays, hungry cyclists are welcomed at the Bühnenhaus and Malge restaurants. And the water is never far away. All along the trail, little hidden bathing spots tempt you to take a dip in the cool waters. The track continues past Mörserschen and Heiligen See, with breath-taking views at every bend in the road. Suddenly there's an old locomotive by the roadside.

Time for a stop at the Kirchmöser Industrial Heritage Trail and its 15 stages. If you're interested, call in at the Plauer See water tower - 65 m high and with a panorama terrace. Don't forget to register your visit in advance. The track crosses Wendsee just before Plaue. Continue on the trail through the Plaue castle gardens - you might enjoy a visit to the Fontane trail at this point. Summer cinema and festivals, such as Fischerjakobi, which celebrates fishing and boating traditions, take place here.

Now cross the Plaue Bridge to reach the opposite Havel bank, follow the track on the north side of Plauer See and continue back into town along the Silo Canal, opened in 1910, always within sight of Quenzsee.

The cathedral

Picturesquely located between the Betzsee and the River Havel, the ensemble consisting of the cathedral, the cloisters, the Curia and adjoining buildings still characterises the Cathedral Island today. It is the oldest section of the extensively restored old town of Brandenburg on the Havel.

It was here that King Otto I. founded the Diocese of Brandenburg in 948. The foundation stone was laid in 1165 and the building of the cathedral as we know it today began. The gothic reconstruction was completed around the middle of the 15th century and still characterises the building's facade today. Artworks in the cathedral date from the Middle Ages to the 20th century.

The valuable treasures in the archive and the museum also date back through 1,000 years of church history. Especially the large collection of magnificent robes – one of the grandest in Europe – demonstrates the splendour of former times. A new exhibition every year, themed special tours and exciting children's events give an insight into the cathedral's surprising and varied history. Evenings of music at the beginning of the year in the auditorium of the "Ritterakademie" (Knights' Academy) are a highlight, as are the summer music concerts in May, which are performed across the whole island. Special concerts, such as the annual Brandenburg Sommer Concerts round off the programme of music at the cathedral.

An insider tip for lovers of baroque church music is the famous Wagner organ, built in 1723. It is a poignant testimony to the fact that when you build an organ, it is not the number of registers that is most important, but the careful choice of timbre, as well as excellent workmanship and tonal quality. With this example of his work, Wagner left us a great legacy. The Wagner organ has remained almost unchanged during the past 300 years and is still one of the most valuable and beautiful organs in the Federal State of Brandenburg.

It's all happening here!

Brandenburg on the Havel offers visitors a wide variety of cultural and theatrical events, which are best enjoyed on a short break to the more than one thousand year old cathedral town, also known as the "Birthplace of the Mark Brandenburg".

Throughout the year, comedy and drama lovers can look forward to a wide choice of entertaining performances in Brandenburg's theatres.

The dedicated team at the "event theatre", for example, have committed themselves to a combination of culture and cuisine. At performances such as the "Comedy Frühling", "Brandenburger Klostersommer" and the "Brandenburger Weihnachtsbühne", audiences can enjoy great acting along with a selection of culinary treats. This form of entertainment has captivated theatre-goers for almost twenty years. In particular, the alternating, unusual venues they use draw a lot of guests to the town on the Havel. Many of them choose in a special package, whereby guests are often taken by boat to the theatre and, on the way, can enjoy the natural beauty of the countryside along the River Havel.

The "Fontane Klub", the headquarters of the "event theatre", is also a popular and interesting cultural venue. Comedy, cabaret, an excellent cinema programme, along with Italian and German catering make it a mainstay of the town's cultural scene.

Concerts and summer music in the cathedral, along with events in "Slawendorf", the Industrial Museum and the Brandenburg Theatre, round off the town's cultural programme.

Living History

The city of Brandenburg on the Havel looks back on more than 1,000 years of meaningful and eventful history and is in every respect a gem in the Mark Brandenburg. A variety of museums have taken on the task of relating its history.

Among them are the Cathedral Museum, the City Museum in Frey Haus with its stone gate tower and the Brandenburg Museum of Archaeology in the Paulikloster, which covers the archaeological history of the federal state.

The museum opened in 2008 on an area of around 2,000 m² within the historic walls of the mediaeval Paulikloster. A permanent exhibition with around 10,000 exhibits provides a fascinating insight into over 130,000 years of cultural history in the Federal State of Brandenburg. There are also frequently changing special exhibitions. A journey through time takes visitors from the first traces of humanity in the Old Stone Age to the oldest carrying net in the world, surgical operations in the New Stone Age, offerings from the Bronze Age, the Germanic peoples and Slavs and the first towns in the Mark Brandenburg. It ends with a selection of findings from the 20th century.

It is often everyday items, which give us a direct insight into the day-to-day life of the people, just as elaborate jewellery collections, ceremonial weapons and ritual objects demonstrate what was unusual and special in the life of our ancestors.

Computer terminals, multimedia demonstrations, models and a 4 x 6 metre-large "Stratorama" give visitors the opportunity to delve into history and the stories behind the people.

Special events such as the "Archäovent", "Archäotechnica", "Archäomediale", FOCUS and "Culture in the Monastery" round off a varied programme.

It is possible to live without a pug,
but is it worth it?

the duck

has to wait outside

Please don't copy!

Only the chosen species of horned, shortmuzzled forest pugs is allowed to do this.

Even though he's sitting on a bench and not in a bath tub, there's no doubt about it – it's Mr Müller-Lüdenscheidt. Observant visitors may spot the potato-nosed figure next to the Town Hall at the Altstädtischen Market, where his creator, Vicco von Bülow (1923-2011), alias Lorient, received honorary citizenship of his home town in 1993. The figure is a tribute to the dearly loved son of the former Hanseatic town – which could be compared to a bath tub when you consider that one fifth of the municipal area is water. "The duck has to wait outside" was the last comment Lorient wrote in the Guest Book in 2009.

"The Lorient path" is an interesting way for the visitor to explore Brandenburg an der Havel, hot on the trail of the famous cartoonist and comedian, and leads to those places of interest connected with the versatile artist. The circular trail starts in front of the red-brick wall of the former infantry barracks, where the son of Police Lieutenant von Bülow "learnt the upright gait, so to speak", as he himself said. The trail continues on to the Baptistry of St Gotthardt and finally to the cathedral. It was here that he performed his famous "Bundestagsrede" (Bundestag speech) of nonsensical phrases in 1985, on the occasion of the first Lorient exhibition in the GDR. The tower was later renovated with the funding of the Vicco von Bülow Trust, founded after a benefit concert in the Brandenburger Theater. A further memorial to Lorient can be found in the shape of the horned, short-muzzled forest pugs with curly tails, recently "released" in Humboldthain am Salzhofufer.

At the moment there are twenty bronze figures, about 50-centimetres in height, busily going about the business of sitting, standing, sleeping, sniffing and lifting a leg. Lorient once drily remarked, "It is possible to live without a pug, but is it worth it?" Today the visitor can find an explanation of this comment on a wooden terrace next to the Church of Saint Johannis at the Jahrtausendbrücke (Thousand-year Bridge). The forest-pug sketch criticises human intervention in nature and its disastrous results with his inimitable humour, and is one of his most memorable classics.

Culinary

The Wishing Table – A

Taste of Brandenburg

In addition to the cultural highlights and wonderful countryside in Brandenburg's unique river and lake landscape, the region's cuisine never fails to impress visitors and is as varied as the region itself.

A visit to a restaurant can even help you to become better acquainted with the region. Culinary trails are in fashion and, as the saying goes: "Man should give his body something nice, so the soul wants to live inside it".

Many restaurants also offer lake or riverside al fresco dining – a delight for the eyes as well as the palate. So that smaller visitors do not feel bored among so much culinary variety in open spaces, on sun terraces or in beer gardens, there are petting zoos or marinas with their own playgrounds.

Above all fish is typical in the region's restaurants. Regional dishes with freshly caught fish, delivered by local anglers from the nearby lakes, are especially tasty. Not forgetting the many fascinating ways to serve the "spud", for which we have Old Fritz to thank - Frederick the Great, who made the potato into a staple food.

There's no accounting for taste, they say, which is why there is always something for everyone. Whether a snack, a quick refreshment for cyclists on the Havel Cycle Path, or cake and ice cream for those with a sweet tooth, everyone is taken care of, even as far as lavish multi-course meals in elegant locations. In the buildings of the old town, new town and on the cathedral island, guests can experience the perfect combination of history and great dining.

Quality wines from the sand hills of the Mark Brandenburg

Alongside a contrasting landscape and a fine cultural scene, the region of Potsdam-Mittelmark offers some great culinary surprises.

Or did you already know that Werder, with its four vineyards on 10.4 hectares, is the birthplace and centre of winegrowing in Brandenburg and attracts attention from experts?

Following on the tradition of winegrowing in Werder, the Werderaner Wachtelberg was replanted in 1985. In 1995, a group of enthusiasts founded an organisation to support traditional winegrowing in the Werder region and with a lot of energy, set about further developing the vineyard. As we know, success is infectious and so the winemaking revival continued on the Phöbener Wachtelberg, the vineyard in Töplitz and the Galgenberg in Werder. Werder's four vineyards are cultivated by three dedicated and visionary winemakers and their families.

This is the recipe for winemaking in Werder: The River Havel and its lakes, the region's dry weather conditions and plenty of sunshine provide the ideal microclimate for growing the vines. The sand in the Mark Brandenburg, together with a "shot" of clay, forms the soil on which the fresh, light and fruity grapes thrive. Directly after harvesting, the grapes are pressed and processed in two wineries, in order to guarantee excellent quality wines.

At the forefront, of course, are the winegrowers and cellar masters, who with their skills and enthusiasm have created an unusually wide variety of excellent white and red wines on just a very small area of land. Each winegrower offers special bottlings, which can be only available for tasting and drinking on his premises. Enough said about those for now. A special "Connoisseur Tour" takes guests through the vineyards and to the winegrowers' secret locations where, over a glass of wine, they can enjoy breath-taking views of the beautiful Havel landscape.

The winemaking "bug" in the Mark Brandenburg has spread as far as the royal vineyards in Potsdam.

A special discovery in

in the Fläming Region

By someone, who set out on an internship and returned with a great treasure.

During an internship in Styria, a young farmer discovered the shiny giants that are rich in nutrients and took some of them home with him. This is how fairy tales begin, which in his case ended with the planting of Styrian pumpkins and him setting up his own business in Zauchwitz.

Incidentally, because of their seeds, the big, fat pumpkins are in fact berries. The enormous variety of them also, of course, includes small, fat ones.

Their nutrients and the options for cooking pumpkins were not recognised for a long time and it was a while before they found their way into the gourmet kitchen. The Styrian pumpkins and catering companies in Zauchwitz of course played their part in this great development.

In Klaistow, they have also dedicated themselves with hard work and sheer inexhaustible creativity to growing and processing pumpkins. Produce from the region includes everything from nutty pumpkin seed oil, pesto and seeds for nibbling to pasta, spicy spreads and ice cream.

In the meantime, the credo in the restaurants is “there’s no such thing as can’t”. Menus include everything from traditional pumpkin soup, to tasty main courses and fine desserts and cakes. Their sparkling pumpkin wine and Secco are unusual and delicious drinks.

With its pumpkin exhibition, Klaistow has a very special card up its sleeve. Planned, designed, built and decorated with a lot of enthusiasm and attention to detail, it is the annual highlight for pumpkin fans of all ages.

Zauchwitz and Klaistow are always worth a visit. Whether to dine, out of curiosity or just to marvel at the healthy, round pumpkins.
